

Representation Agreement

Section 7 Standard Powers (RA7)

For adults whose cognitive capability to 'understand' is in question.

Adults may make an RA7 even if they are cognitively incapable to 'understand.' The RA7 has a different definition of capability than for other legal documents. The RA7 is about equity, inclusion & accessibility.

What is a Representation Agreement?

A Representation Agreement is a legal document under the Representation Agreement Act of BC (RA Act). This law came into effect on February 28, 2000. There were some amendments (changes) to the law as of September 1, 2011.

A Representation Agreement is the only legal planning document in BC that covers health care and personal care matters.

The authorities available are listed in two different sections of the RA Act. For short-hand you will hear this described as two types of Representation Agreements: RA7 and RA9. There are different approaches to capability for each type. Some adults will not meet the capability requirements to make the RA9; they will make the RA7.

REQUIREMENTS TO MAKE

Who may make a Representation Agreement?

Making a Representation Agreement depends on:

- Age - an individual must be 19 years or older; and
- Capability requirements - the RA9 is based on a cognitive (traditional) approach to capability; the RA7 takes a different approach - capability is not based on cognitive abilities. See page 2.

No legal professional is required for making any type of Representation Agreement.

No medical assessment is required.

An adult may make a RA7 even if a doctor or a psychiatrist thinks the adult is not capable of managing their finances or making health or personal care decisions.

Who is this RA7 fact sheet for?

This fact sheet discusses the Representation Agreement section 7 (RA7) for an adult whose mental or cognitive capability to 'understand' is in question. It applies if:

1. You are helping an adult who has cognitive difficulties, and
2. There is no existing legal authority in place.

AUTHORITIES OR POWERS IN RA7

What authorities are listed in section 7?

There are four authorities, also called standard powers, listed in section 7 of the RA Act. These authorities cover aspects of four life areas.

- Routine management of financial affairs, such as banking, applying for and managing government benefits, dealing with the Canada Revenue Agency, and managing investments. (Click to read the full definition of routine finances, it is part of the law.)
- Legal affairs, which includes obtaining legal services, instructing a lawyer, settling a claim for compensation (perhaps due to abuse in residential school), going to small claims court.
- Minor and major health care, which includes decisions and consent about medications, tests, dental work, surgery, end-of-life comfort care, any treatment requiring a general anesthetic.
- Personal care, including decisions about living arrangements, diet, exercise, taking part in activities, and personal safety issues. (Note: there is separate legislation for admission to a long term care facility.)

Take the Representation Agreement out of the drawer if the adult needs help and there are questions about the helper's legal authority. The Agreement lists who has legal authority.

ABOUT CAPABILITY

Legal documents like a Will, contract, type of power of attorney, RA9, RA7 are subject to various requirements spelled out in the law that governs them. Different laws have different requirements.

Laws and the legal planning documents they outline, except the RA7, have similar requirements about capability. We call this the traditional approach. This approach requires that the maker have the cognitive ability to 'understand the nature and effect' of the document being made.

The RA7 is geared toward equity. The RA7 is a legal document created in BC to provide a way that adults who have cognitive difficulties can authorize people who know and care about them to help with decisions and consent.

The RA Act is based on lived experience (real life experiences).

Traditionally, laws (legal requirements) viewed people with cognitive difficulties as incapable or incompetent. The legal effect is that they were treated as a non-person. There was no recognition for non-traditional abilities and non-traditional communication. The law was the opposite of inclusion. The RA Act and the RA7 changed this in law. It is taking longer for attitudes, beliefs and the culture and practices of systems to change.

There is still a lot of discrimination against people with cognitive difficulties - BC's law for the RA7 offers the most progressive approach in the world.

What is the RA7 approach to capability?

The RA7 approach to capability is unique because it recognizes that many factors are involved in being 'capable' and these may be different for different people.

The RA7 is not for 'incapable' adults. The important point is that the RA7 definition views capability in a broad and inclusive way and makes Representation Agreements (a legal planning document) accessible to adults even if they have cognitive difficulties.

What does the RA Act say?

Early on in sections 2 and 3 of the RA Act there are some over-arching statements or principles:

- Everyone is presumed capable of making their own decisions and of making a Representation Agreement, and
- The way an adult communicates does not prevent them from making a Representation Agreement. (Some adults communicate through their behaviour.)

The RA Act also says that one of the purposes of Representation Agreements is to allow adults to avoid guardianship. (Adult guardianship is often called Committeeship in BC and views adults with cognitive difficulties as a non-person.)

What are factors to consider for being capable to make a RA7?

The definition or capability requirements for making a Representation Agreement with authorities from section 7 of the RA Act are outlined in section 8 of the RA Act, which says:

- An adult may make a Representation Agreement with authorities from section 7 EVEN IF the adult can NOT make a contract.

This means an adult may make a RA7, EVEN IF the adult may not appear to cognitively 'understand' the RA7.

Section 8 also gives some examples (not criteria) of relevant factors to consider when thinking about capability to make a RA7:

- Does the adult communicate a desire to have a representative make, help make, or stop making decisions? or
- Does the adult demonstrate choices and preferences and can express feelings of approval or disapproval of others? or
- Is the adult aware that making the representation agreement or changing or revoking any of the provisions means that the representative may make, or stop making, decisions or choices that affect the adult? or
- Does the adult have a relationship with the representative that is characterized by trust?

RA7 FORMS

Nidus provides RA7 forms on its website - nidus.ca

RA7ALL - is a Representation Agreement that includes all 4 authorities from section 7. (See page 1, under heading 'Authority or Powers in RA7.')

RA7H+P - is a Representation Agreement that includes 2 authorities from section 7: minor and major Health care and Personal care.

Read examples (next page) to see how the forms might apply to your situation.

SOME EXAMPLES

Who makes the RA7?

Shaun is a middle-aged adult with a developmental disability. He communicates in a non-traditional way. Shaun needs help with banking, applying for benefits, dental work, consenting to medications, and taking directions from his physiotherapist.

Shaun's mother and brother can provide informal support but for many situations they require legal authority to help Shaun. For instance, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) cannot speak to Shaun's mother or brother about Shaun's income taxes unless a document is in place giving them legal authority. He is not capable to understand signing the CRA consent form. But he may make an RA7.

A RA7ALL allows Shaun to give his personal supporters the legal authority to help him with aspects of all four areas of life: financial, legal, health and personal. It protects his privacy, supports his self-determination, and keeps him safe.

The RA7 protects the liability of third parties like CRA, hospitals, dentists, community living agencies, financial institutions, and government services.

Todd is turning 19 in a few months. He needs help managing his affairs and making decisions due to a disability at birth. His teacher has been talking with his parents about how they can support Todd when he becomes an adult. The teacher explained about the Representation Agreement section 7. The teacher has also been helping Todd with signing (making his mark). This is very important as Todd will sign (make his own mark) on his RA7ALL in front of two independent witnesses.

Cherry is a woman whose speech and memory has been affected by a brain injury. The Public Guardian and Trustee (PGT) is managing her financial and legal affairs as the statutory property guardian, but nothing is in place for health and personal care. Cherry makes the RA7H+P and names her sister as her representative and her brother as the alternate to help her with health care and personal care decisions, such as decisions about rehabilitation and occupational therapy. Her representative will talk with the PGT to arrange for Cherry's money to pay for treatments and equipment needed to improve her quality-of-life.

Kam is a senior who recently suffered a severe stroke. He made a Will before his stroke, but he is not dead and the Will cannot help. Kam needs someone to arrange payment of the care facility bills from his bank account. With his nephew's help, Kam makes an RA7ALL that includes authority for routine management of financial affairs, which would give Kam's nephew the authority to pay Kam's bills from his bank account and arrange direct deposit of his pension benefits. The RA7 All also covers health and personal care matters so Kam's nephew can help ensure Kam gets access to good care including rehabilitation services. Hopefully Kam will be able to leave the facility and resume his previous lifestyle (before the stroke).

When Joyce was first diagnosed with Alzheimer Disease, she met the capability requirements to make an Enduring Power of Attorney (EPA) and appointed her friend Barb in the EPA as her attorney. This allows Barb to manage financial matters, but, as Joyce's dementia has progressed, she now needs help with her health and personal care decisions. It is more difficult for her to remember important details. Naming Barb as her representative for health care and personal care matters in an RA7H+P gave Joyce peace of mind. Barb can be present during medical appointments to help Joyce speak up for her wishes. Barb can help by picking up medications at the pharmacy and accessing information and communicating with health care providers on Joyce's behalf.

OTHER EXAMPLES

Above are some examples to highlight the variety of situations where the RA7 is helpful to seniors as well as adults with a developmental disability. Some other situations include adults:

- With Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder;
- With autism;
- With schizophrenia;
- Under the Mental Health Act...

An adult might not have any family members to be involved in their Agreement. The personal supporters might be former staff, a former teacher, friends who work at the local coffee shop... Creativity is required and can be very rewarding.

In one case, such supporters decided that they should each write about their involvement with the adult and the nature of the trusting relationship. The best part of this exercise was that it showed that the relationships were not just one-sided — each supporter talked about the benefits they received from their relationship with the adult.

Nidus has found that the process of making a RA7 and talking about capability is important for learning about and seeing the adult as self-determined. Pictures and videos are also helpful for these discussions.

Yes, a representative, alternate, or monitor may resign from the Agreement they are named in.

Sometimes this may require the adult to make a new Agreement. Click to read more:

What is supported decision making?

You may hear the term supported decision making linked to the RA7. Supported decision making is a new concept that was first introduced in law with the RA Act.

Substitute decision making (which has been the norm), is where someone takes over the adult's decisions and rights. With supported decision making, it is about helping an individual to participate in decisions that affect them.

Just as people are different, the way they participate in decision making may be different. Some individuals communicate by blinking their eyes or squeezing a finger.

The concept of supported decision making is tied to new approaches and ways of thinking about capability. Some adults need more help with certain kinds of decisions and this can change depending on various factors. Nidus describes this as a continuum.

The continuum includes independent decision making (like when someone makes clear their preference for a certain colour or their preference to always wear a baseball cap). Also on the continuum is inter-dependent decision making (supported decision making). Substitute decision making is at the far end of the continuum.
